IPPG STRATEGIC STATEMENT

Upholding Peace and Democracy During and After Ghana's Elections

As Ghanaians head to the polls today, the International Perspective for Policy and Governance (IPPG) calls on all citizens and stakeholders to uphold fairness, transparency, and peace in this democratic process. Ghana's strong tradition of democracy remains a model for Africa, and this election is another opportunity to reaffirm our shared commitment to good governance and national unity.

We make a strong appeal to all stakeholders:

1. Voters: Exercise your right to vote responsibly, peacefully, and with a focus on the future of Ghana. Every vote counts, and your voice matters.
2. The Electoral Commission: Continue ensuring transparency and impartiality to maintain trust in the electoral process.
3. Political Parties and Leaders: Accept the will of the people with grace and resolve disputes through legal and peaceful mechanisms. Avoid any actions or statements that may incite division or violence.
4. Security Agencies: Act with professionalism, neutrality, and integrity to safeguard citizens and the electoral process.
5. The Media: Be responsible and accurate in reporting, counter misinformation, and promote national unity.
6. Youth: Play a constructive role as agents of peace, rejecting violence or manipulation.

Elections are not just about choosing leaders but reaffirming the values of peace, inclusivity, and national progress. Ghana's strength lies in its ability to rise above challenges as one people, with one destiny.

As we witness this day unfold, IPPG calls on all Ghanaians to embrace peace, dialogue, and mutual respect. Together, let us ensure this election reflects the best of Ghana's democratic tradition and paves the way for a brighter, united future.
